Colored Dots

The cooperative Sunday School program sponsored by the Galilee Baptist Sunday School on Sunday, October 20 at 8 P.M., was a great success. Seven Sunday Schools in the different communities in Appomattox made up the program. Miss Hester B. Stevens, secretary of the Galilee Sunday School, served as mistress of ceremony. The welcome address was delivered by Mrs. Virginia Watson, supt. Remarks were given by Rev. R. Q. Lawing and the Rev. McKinley Cain, pastor of the Springfield Baptist Church. A silver offering of $25.10 was taken by supt. Charlie Walker of the Zion Baptist Church and supt. Walker Mosely, of the Peaceful Grove Sunday School.

A union service will be held at the Galilee Baptist Church on the first Sunday morning in November at the 11:00 service. The First Baptist Church, pastor and choir will conduct the service. Rev. N. R. Jordan is pastor of the First Church and will deliver the sermon.

A county-wide carnival will be sponsored by the Carver P.- T. A. under the direction of Miss Maddden, school librarian, tonight, beginning at 8 P.M.

County agent G. L. James' brother from C' reland, Ohio is visiting his brothem and family here.

Changing Styles Do Not Affect Home Decoration

Although new colors, patterns and designs in home furnishings are emphasized from year to year, there is no rigid and quick-changing "style" in home decoration in the same sense as there is in feminine millinery and clothes, professional decorators point out. A home is a permanent affair; when the decorative motif is set, it remains for years. If the arbiters of home decoration say that Persian blue is the color mode of the year, homemakers don't feel obliged to redecorate immediately. Or if the furniture manufacturers are featuring round dining room tables, families do not scrap the square tables in their homes.

This absence of "style" in home decoration is easily explained. Suppose a woman has a breakfront desk in the living room, a reproduction of a type popular during the hoop-skirt era. The breakfront, mingling with modern pieces, adds charm to the setting. The homemaker is very proud of her possession. But she would feel very self-conscious and ill at ease if she greeted her guests in a hoop-skirt.

Smart women do not worry much about current style furnishings but decorate their homes to achieve gracious living in the modern spirit according to their own concepts of cheerful, pleasing surroundings. Furniture and decorative accessories of older design are mingled freely with modern designs to achieve convenience and comfort.

Good Planning Will Ease Task of Preparing Meals

One hour of good planning will make your meals go smoothly for you. Check these points as you plan them:

Heavy, well-balanced meals are needed for workers at this season.

Be sure your daily menu calls for milk, eggs, green and yellow vegetables, meat, cereal, fruits and sweets.

Do not serve too many foods at one meal. But have plenty of what you do serve.

Cook and season the food so it is tasty and serve it nicely—nothing fancy, but clean and attractive.

Peel enough potatoes in the morning for the entire day. Fix other vegetables early too.

Make biscuits the night before. Keep them cool and bake them in the morning.

Use your pressure cooker. It is good for less tender cuts of meat, dry beans and other vegetables. Brown the pressure-cooked meat in the oven 15 minutes before serving it.

Cold meat for supper is good if you cook enough in the morning for two meals.

Have your equipment ready, sharpen your knives, get out your large kettles ahead of time.

Brief, Chic Raincoat

The "Pee Wee" raincoat, modeled after the brief topper, is popular on campuses this fall. It is made of water-proof kerocsel, and comes in gay hues, such as coral reef, sea garden (mostly blue) and lime green.

Bees Perform Vital Work

Fertilization of flowers is so important that beekeeping must be carried on to maintain a profitable agriculture. The service rendered by agriculture by the beekeepers in furnishing the public with pollinating insects has commonly been overlooked. In orchard areas, for example, and in alfalfa fields, it is frequently noted that crops are more abundant in outlying fields that border on rough uncultivated lands or wooded tracts where wild bees nest. Specialized farming with wide acreage devoted to a single crop is unfavorable for bees in providing only a single blossoming season. Farmers and fruit growers may pay special attention to favoring the conservation of a variety of plants favored by the bees, and then keep bees, recognizing that honey is a by-product of the work the bees do as pollinators.

Growth Hormone Reduces Body Loss of Nitrogen

In one of the first clear-cut demonstrations of a basic mechanism of growth, a group of University of California scientists have shown that the growth hormone, a magic fluid manufactured by the pituitary gland, is a major factor in helping the body conserve nitrogen and in the synthesis of proteins.

The experiments were done in rats with fractured legs. It had been shown previously in both rats and man that, after a bone fracture, there is a severe loss of nitrogen due to general tissue breakdown in the body. In rats with two legs fractured, the injection of minute quantities of growth hormone cut down the loss of nitrogen to a negligible quantity. These animals also lost no weight, while in uninjected rats with fractures the loss of nitrogen and weight were marked.

The researchers emphasized that the growth hormone cannot be applied yet to assist in the treatment of human fractures, since at the present time the substance can be purified only in minimum quantities so minute as to limit its use to experiments with small animals. However, the experiments throw new light on biological processes which will be helpful in application.

FATHER DARKLEAF

By The Editor

We had several replies to the lady's letter in last week's issue asking for the name of the tax people who had been in her brother who passed away here just before going to war in 1941. The soldier had been in France. It seems to us the Appomattox couple was Mrs. R. B. Haley and we have written to the boy's sister. We were glad to have been of service.

The Appomattox Lions Club had a delightful ladies night last Monday evening at the school followed by a square dance at Club Appo. The occasion was the club's Charter Night.About hundred were present. Rev. H. Jones gave an informative talk on United Nations Organization. That was followed by one of the numerous addresses ever given in Appomattox, delivered by Mr. Miller, Lynchburg banker. Mr. Miller really had the Lions going. W. C. Dudley was master of ceremonies. Lion president G. -B. Jones presided.

This is the week. It's nive to travel about the Old Dominion any time you want to see nature at her glory, visit the Skyline drive or just look about you you are this week. We caught a ride over to Lexington Saturday morning, and the October scenery was beautiful to behold in crossing the mountains just before you get into Vista.

Then across an old college fraternity brother a few days whom we hadn't seen for years. He has just come to Virginia to take over as head mail order department of the state's largest store. He'll be filling lots of orders from Brightleaf.

Our renowned modesty permits us to overlook Mr. L. Lucado's advertisement in this paper. Thanks. We could tell a few other similar experiences.

The football team will play at Court House Friday night.

Tonight is Hallowe'en! Take it easy.
